Fruitport's summer tennis program

By Coach Brad Busscher

Fruitport's summer recreational tennis program finished up a great summer of fun competition with the annual Fruitport tournament. With over 65 participants who took lessons and were involved in competition/travel tennis this summer, the Fruitport tennis program was alive and kickin' during 2010. Some of the highlights of the Fruitport tournament demonstrate the achievements of camp participants.

In junior team tennis, which includes foam balls and junior racquets on 18-foot nets, five to eight year olds played to learn tennis this summer. During the Fruitport tournament, in the boys' division, Nathan Peterson overcame Matt Hylland. In girls' competition, Macy Schwander edged out Veda Vargas as flight champion.

Our next division was the 12 and under group, which used a full court and a six game pro-set for their matches. The boys' champion was Graham Sullivan who beat Brady Bowen. The girls' match between Rebekah Busscher and Emily Visscher resulted in a win for Rebekah.

In the 15 and under division, up and coming talent was evident in middle school and high school play. Alex Bowen continued his fine summer play with a win over Graham Sullivan. The best match of the day was in girls' competition, with Anna Leboeuf just sneaking past Cassidy Walbrink for the victory.

Competition in the 18 and under division featured high school students from the varsity and junior varsity teams. Nolan Clark gave John Sullivan a run for his money in the boys' competition, but fell short in a close match. The girls' competition matched up two of the Muskegon area's best female tennis players as Jessica Erny won over Carrie Leboeuf.

By having fun and developing skills crucial to tennis, the Fruitport area student athletes continue to display hard work, sportsmanship, great participation and enjoyment for the game. As a coach, I am very grateful for the parental assistance I receive while teaching and coaching your kids. Thank you for your continued support for Fruitport tennis.
