Preparing for the Fair
Submitted by Ginger Bregge
This July the Muskegon County Youth Fair welcomes you to its third installment of horse showing. Cloverbud, the fair's budding new division for children ages 5-8, gears up for its most exciting year yet. With enrollment doubling every year, the division will showcase 24 children and their horses, up from 11 last year. Achieved increase in enrollment can be attributed to our reputation mentoring kids whom would like to get involved with horses. The fair begins Tuesday, July 23rd ending on Saturday, July 27th. The Cloverbuds will be showing their horses Wednesday at 9:00 a.m., July 24th. Come support your community's youth and have a good time doing it. Kids who come down can meet livestock, see the horses, and even go into the arts and crafts barn.

As you can see in this picture the young Cloverbud requires the support of many experienced 4-H riders willing to lend a hand.

Medals are awarded to the Cloverbuds for their participation in this fun event. Everyone's a winner!

3rd year of Cloverbuds (ages 5-8)
Crafts, livestock, horses
July 24th Cloverbuds will be showing horses. Last year 11 Cloverbuds showed their horses, which doubled this year to 24.
Tuesday, July 23rd until Saturday, July 27th

FHS school board member honored by United Way
(Submitted by United Way of the Lakeshore)

United Way of the Lakeshore celebrated its 2011 achievements with a crowd of about 250 at its annual meeting on Thursday, April 25. Steve Keglovitz, a local labor volunteer and member of the Fruitport school board, received the agency volunteer award. As part of the United Way Community Impact Awards, the recipients receive a monetary gift to benefit programs of their choosing. Keglovitz is the former president of United Steelworkers Local 1015. He serves on the West Michigan Labor Council, Labor Participation Committee, and received the MALMC Harold Workman Award. He is a current member of United Way's board of directors, has served as a longtime Loaned Executive, and is a member of the Communications Committee. He also serves in the Salvation Army and has led teams in United Way's Day of Caring for many years.

Stair poster promotes use of stairs for health
(Submitted by Kendall College of Art and Design)

Kendall College of Art and Design of Ferris State University has released a stair prompt signage design to promote active living in Western Michigan. Graphic images promoting healthy behavior have been shown to motivate stair users, according to the Center for Disease Control and Prevention. The message in the signage, "Get Healthy, Save the Earth, Take the Stairs!" also points to a greener option, the stairs, over energy-consuming elevators. A stair week is planned for early September to raise awareness. According to national research on health-promoting architecture, six studies evaluated the relationship between people's perception of the environment and physical activity. Overall, the median improvement in some aspect of physical activity was 35 percent given a perceived safer, inviting environment. In active building design research, men who climbed at least 20 floors per week (four floors per work day) can lower their risk of stroke and death from all causes by 20 percent.
